Regents Let $200,000 Contract

Classroom Addition, New Prexy Home Immediate Steps In Building Program

Highlighting Tuesday's meeting of the Wartburg college Board of Regents, however, was the signing of the contract for the long-awaited south wing addition to the administration building.

Also approved at the same meeting were plans for the erection of a new home for the president, made possible by a $16,000 grant for that purpose contained in the will of the late F. Hoops of Byron, Neb. A resolution was passed to make U. S. social security benefits available to unordained faculty and staff members.

Fane F. Vawter construction company of Des Moines, who also built the Knights gymnasium, received the two hundred thousand dollar contract. Money for the building was collected during the 1950 church-wide longearing for Higher Education. Under a recently adopted policy of the A.C., building contracts could be let until all the required funds were on hand.

To Double South Wing

New addition will more than double the south elevation of Luther hall. The central part of the finished building will be of cut stone, and the north wall will be constructed of the future chapel-auditorium may be added. Construction will get under way as soon as weather conditions permit. Students will recall that President C. H. Becker dug the first spadeful of earth for the May, 1949, when the now 18-month-old gymnasium was dedicated.

Library On Ground Floor

According to Dr. E. H. Hertel of the college building committee, the ground floor of the new south wing extension will be used mainly for library space. The main floor will house a women's lounge and several classrooms. On the top floor will be physics and engineering laboratories, plus several more classrooms.

Space which will be vacated by moving the physics laboratory to the new addition will be used to enlarge the biology laboratory.

When the south wing is completed, the main entrance to Luther hall will face Bremer avenue. Eventually, it will also serve as main entrance to the chapel-auditorium when that proposed structure is erected.

MAC Noel Concert To Highlight Year

Highlighting Music Appreciation club meetings for the year will be the Christmas campus concert at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Wartburg hall lounge.

Robert Shaw Chorale and Fred Weising sang at the concert on the program. Also included will be Tschakowsky's "Nutcracker Suite" and selections from Wartburg's Chorales and "The Littlest Angel" with Loretta Young as the angel.

Music Appreciation club sends a cordial invitation to everyone.

Mission Fellowship Schedules Programs At County Homes

Mission Fellowship, following last week's interest in the Christmas program at the Bremer county home on the evening of Dec. 7.

In addition, plans have been made for the presentation of the same program on Dec. 11 at the Bremer county home. The program, Dr. Flesner, junior and program chairman, a group of thirty people will be behind the program.

This presentation will consist of a pantomime with a narrator telling the Christmas story. Carol by the fire will be the program, supplemented the program. Favors donated by Mission Fellowship will be distributed following the evening's formal festivities.

'National Student Association Is For Us,' Declare Three Wartburg Representatives

By Bill Boyken

If Wartburg doesn't join the National Student association this year, at least three people around the campus are going to be disappointed. For while Sadie's Ladies were pursuing would Knights last weekend, a different kind of femininity, the NSA was projecting its charms upon Myron Gruenwald, Pete Becker and Gih Nass.

These three men were Wartburg's representatives to the Iowa-Nehraske regional meeting of the National Student association at Grinnell college last Friday through Sunday. Although not officially a member, Wartburg was asked by NSA to attend the conference to talk over problems that exist with amazing uniformity on the campus of every college and university in the nation.

Advantages Are Obvious.

"It's advantages are obvious," said Gruenwald this week. "For instance, when the problem of girls' hours came up this fall, it was necessary for the Student Senate to contact individually many other schools to obtain statements of their policy. If we had been a member of NSA, it would have been able to supply that information much more fully, quickly and satisfactorily than we were possibly able to."

On the campus scale, NSA is entirely separate from student government and yet closely connected with it. A separate NSA campus is set up on campus as a sort of sounding board for the Student Senate. The NSA council would be able to stimulate thinking, search into student gripes and problems and then give student government the shot in the arm that the best need occasionally.

Aid Student Government.

"NSA council, in this way, would not compete with, but, rather, more fully utilize student government on campus," stated Gruenwald. "NSA would be a supplementary agency that would sound out student problems and study the attempts at solution which are being made to these same problems all over the nation."

On a national basis the keyword of the organization is 'awareness.' Thus NSA is divided into three commissions: campus problems, on intercollegiate relations in the United States and on intercollegiate relations throughout the whole world; it is considering setting up a fourth commission on finances.

College presidents and regional conference which the three delegates from Wartburg attend, though really only a minor part of the NSA program, nevertheless demonstrated impressively the usefulness of the organization. What was especially striking to Wartburg's delegates was the fact that most other colleges have the same problems that Wartburg has and that intercollegiate discussions of these problems can contribute much to their final solution.

Martindale Speaker At Future Teachers

Speaker at the Future Teachers meeting here next Monday evening, Dec. 11, will be Prof. Frank E. Martindale, of the education department at Iowa State University in Cedar Falls. Meeting will be held in the college cafeteria at 7:15 p.m., according to Art Meyer, senior and president of the group.

Martindale is the sponsor of the FTA group on the Cedar Falls campus and is active in curriculum revision work. He plans to speak on the need for FTA organizations in high schools.

Convocation Offerings Going To Heart Ass'n

Offerings taken at convocation next Thursday and Thursday, Dec. 12 and 14, will be donated to the American Heart association fund, according to Katherine Smith, Student Senate representative for this project.

According to information received by President C. H. Becker from Richard D. Dresselhaus, assistant director of fund raising for the association, the American Heart association is the only national voluntary health organization devoted exclusively to combating diseases of the heart and blood vessels, by far the most serious modern health problem.

'Big Brother' Urges Social Room Etiquette

"Be careful where you throw that cigarette butt—Big Brother may be watching you!"

That's the warning that Myron Gruenwald, freshman and chairman of the Wartburg hall social room committee, is giving to students.

Believing that students have misused their privileges, Big Brother is keeping an eagle eye for all violators of social room etiquette.

According to Gruenwald, things that Big Brother frequently gripes about are: misplaced chairs, smoking cigarette butts on the floor and non-used wastepaper baskets.

Students frequenting the social room are on probation. If they improve, new equipment may be added. However, if they fail to improve, drastic steps will be taken, for instance the elimination of card playing," says Gruenwald. "With Big Brother constantly cracking the whip, we must realize that it is everybody's job to take care of the social room, so that it may continue as a place of leisure and recreation," pleads Gruenwald as he asks for 100 percent cooperation.

Thursday's The Night For College Fun Fest Sponsored By Juniors

Do you want to have a little get-together with the gang before the Christmas holidays?

Well, you do not have to plan such an event, as the junior class has already such a party in store for you, and that party is the all-star Christmas fun fest to be held in the Little Theater on Thursday, Dec. 14, at 7:30 p.m.

Included on the program will be modern modern holiday songs, a skit by the junior class, songs by the Four Knights and by a special Wartburg quartet, a visit from that man of the North hall, Santa Gundersen, free refreshments, and an inspiring pertinent lecture story by Dr. G. J. Neumann.

"You just can't afford to miss anything," is the advice of Fred Moberg, publicity chairman. "This will be one of your last opportunities to meet the gang and have a good time singing and eating. Besides that, the girls have a half an hour after the party. Do you need anymore inducements?"

Christmas Concert To Be Given Dec. 17

Annual Christmas concert will be presented in the Knights gymnasium on Thursday, Dec. 17, at 8 p.m., according to the Rev. Dean A. Kilgust, co-chairman of the program. Participating in the presentation will be the Wartburg college concert band, Castle Singers and the Wartburg Choir, with the art department and Wartburg Players in charge of special effects.

Catholic Dignitary To Give Talk Here

For the first time in modern Wartburg history, a Catholic priest will speak on this campus, according to Ray Harms, senior and president of the Rho. The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Leo A. Jaeger of St. John's Catholic church at Waterloo will address the theological students tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. in the Little Theater. All interested are invited to attend, according to Harms.

Axmen Spin Wesleyan, 7-5

By Rudy Kolbers
Leading all the way, Coach "Ax" Burdgaard's hoopers survived a second half score to roll over a visiting Nebraska Wesleyan quintet by a 70-55 score in the Knights' gymnasium last night.

Knights dominated their two-point attack to seven straight as they chalked up their third straight win.

Playing an alert game off the boards, forward John Kurtl led Knight scoring as he jumped his way 14 points on five field goals and four charity tosses. Teammate Jack Bostrack hit for 11 points, 10 of which were his deadly one-handed set shots. Art Miller and Bill Adix led mid-air fighters to bolster the Warriors' scoring.

Gaston High Scorer.
Bob Gaston of the visitors took high scoring honors for the evening, collecting 15 points while teammates Ed Wadsworth and Jack Woods contributed 10 each.

Troubled by a spluttering offense, the Orange and Black boys were expected to be a more normal crew than the sensational shooting outfit that the home team opened in the opening Doane game.

Fast-breaking their way to a quick start, the Knights apparently had the westerners befuddled. The home fans were expecting another rout.

Passing Falls.
Nebraska Wesleyan then put the home Warriors' firework by intercepting pass after pass and cooling the Knight offense. The Warriors were having difficulty finding the hoop and during the first half only one shot was made.

In an effort to revive the fading Knights, Coach Burdgaard instructed Ed Wadsworth and Fritz Steinhauer in the Knight lineup. The move paid off as the Knights scored 14 points in the second half. As the first half the Knights held a lopsided 34-9 lead.

Score Tightens.
McL Sherry passed in three consecutive field goals to lead a Nebraska Wesleyan comeback that tightened the margin to 37-22 before the first half buzzer sounded.

A minute after the second half began the Knights had jumped into a 40-22 margin and apparently had the game put away. Then a desperate Nebraska Wesleyan team found themselves and began to search the net. Tom Waring and Bob Gaston hit from all angles and the gap was closed to 44-39 in five minutes.

Olson Rebounds.
After calling time out the Axmen pulled themselves together and built a 56-39 margin, mainly on the shooting of Adix and Kurtl and the rugged rebounding of bulky Paul Olson.

Best Wartburg passing of the evening was fended in the closing minutes and the Axmen rolled up the score, mainly on the busy ballhandling of Little Jack Bostrack.

Cage Intramurals Begin This Week With 12 Encounters

Intramural basketball, under the leadership of Dr. Wenger, intramural committee chairman, got off to a flying start this week as 12 first-round games were played Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

More participants than in any previous intramural sport have been reported for practice, and the hardcourters are playing with all the gusto of a varsity squad.

Schedule for the first round has been worked out, and all that remains is to secure dates for the contests to be played. As yet, a schedule may be arranged only two weeks in advance of the games, because of conflicts with use of the gymnasium and with the bowling schedule.

Extensive program has been set up this year with two leagues being organized, the American and the National. The roster will include 14 teams, seven in each league. The schedule will be divided into two rounds of seven games each, meaning that each team will have the opportunity to play 14 games. Physical education majors have been secured to referee the contests.

Tentative plans are being made for the championship games at the end of the schedule. Trophies possibly may be given to the winning teams if a slight change is made at the final championship game.

Grappler Wolfram Wins 'Athlete' Title For AAU Showing

When you're talking about wrestling around Wartburg college, one name is frequently mentioned. That name, of course, is "Champ," a sobriquet which Howard Wolfram has been carrying since 1946, when he began his habit of planning and deciding opposing grapplers who had the misfortune of meeting him on the mat.

"Champ's" most recent accolade was an AAU championship at Cedar Falls last Saturday. Wrestling in the rugged collegiate division, the stocky Wolfram won three matches to annex the title in the 167-pound class. "Champ's" stellar performance gives him the distinction of being the first wrestler this year to be named Athlete-of-the-Week by the "W" club.

A product of Maynard high school, "Champ" was a monogram winner in football, basketball and track in his freshman year at Wartburg. "Champ" decided to go out for wrestling, a move that he and Coach Melvin Nelson have never regretted.

The year 1949, "Champ's" sophomore year, was his best going through 11 matches undefeated. Wolfram accumulated a total of 36 points for his team. Doing justice to his nickname, "Champ" has never failed to cop a championship in his division at the conference tournament.

Wolfram, who is a fierce man when wrestling, is a modest, friendly guy otherwise. He is a senior and is interested in entering the ministry after three years at Wartburg's seminary. If "Champ" is as successful at saving souls as he is at grappling, he will still be a champion.

Win-Happy Knights Hit St. Olaf 64-57 In Second Victory

By Ronnie Schumacher
Wartburg's high-scoring cage squad journeyed to Northfield, the city of cows, colleges and contentment, but there was no joy at St. Olaf college Tuesday night as the winhappy Knights hung up victory number two by a score of 64-57.

Paul Olson played a big role in the triumph by commanding the defensive backguard. From the floor, the Axmen connected a respectable 30 per cent of their shots. Jack Bostrack headed the Orange and Black with a total of 13 points.

St. Olaf, fresh from a conquest of South Dakota state, was in front until midway in the initial half when Art Miller scored two quick buckets to give the Knights a 13-10 lead. Wartburg remained in the lead the rest of the way.

Harold "Hare" Steinhauer made an auspicious debut by coming in to the game in the second half and collecting 7 important points. The clever Madison, Wis. forward took only five shots at the hoop and hit on three.

Only at the free throw line did St. Olaf outdo Wartburg. The Lions converted 23 out of 30. Wartburg was successful in only 14 of 34 attempts.

Wartburg grapplers saw much action last week at the AAU invitational tourney at Cedar Falls. Five wrestlers won the first round and went into semi-final competition, but only Howie Wolfram, three-year Iowa conference champion, emerged from the finals with a title in hand.

Next Friday the matmen will begin the first team competition as they journey to Minnesota to meet the Mankato teachers squad for the first meeting of the two schools in mat action.

This encounter will also mark the first wrestling competition for the Mankato men. It is not only their first match of the season but also the first in their sports history. However, the teachers squad showed much ability at the AAU tourney last week as they walked off with a first in the open division.

Since wrestling tryouts have not been held as yet, no definite starting line-up can be given for Wartburg, but the lettermen are expected to come through the tryouts.

Probable starting line-up will consist of Fred Downing at 123-pounds, Grummett or Red Wilharm at 130-pounds, Lyle Wilharm, Nolting or Smrcka at 137-pounds, Baumgartner or Bruninga at 147-pounds, Ed Wolfram or Bob Dukes at 157-pounds, Howie Wolfram at 167-pounds, Resaland or Bock at 177-pounds, and at heavyweight Otto Zwaninger or Dick Camp.

Winter Sports Club To Organize Mon.

Latest extracurricular activity to be considered on the Wartburg campus is a Winter sports club. Organizational meeting of the group has been scheduled for next Monday, Dec. 11, at 4 p.m. in the Little Theatre.

Castle Tales Notable For Variety, Timeliness, High Artistic Quality

By Miss Erna Moehl
One lays down the current issue of Castle Tales with a sigh of satisfaction. It is a good piece of work of which Wartburg can justly be proud. The magazine is attractive with its black prints, photographs, neat make-up and almost uniform use of one style of print for the larger captions.

It is good reading because it has variety and timeliness and, in general, reflects the kind of school it represents—one that has its eyes, heart and mind open to the world about it and stands for some solid principles.

Contents Outstanding.
The editorial staff admittedly aimed at variety and was commendably successful in achieving its goal. The variety and balance of the magazine seem its outstanding features. The subject matter ranges from the familiar to the faraway, from the humorous to the sublime, from the humorous to the serious.

Fantastic, psychological stories, intellectual expostions, impressionistic description, straightforward narratives—all poems and essays that are pure, sheer fun, all are included. Contributors range from people with well-established literary reputations to those who appear for the first time. The choice of material has been happy, so that there is not too much of any one thing.

Editorial Good Addition.
While the magazine has not so many photographs as former editions had and no music at all, it compensates for this lack by including two new features—the magazine editorial and a trial of essays on Ben Franklin. Both of these features are an addition to Castle Tales and deserve special comment.

Wayne Stumme's editorial, "If Liberalism Is to Survive," is timely and appropriate. It is logically thought through in that the writer not only gives the reasons for organizing a new party together with the platform it should adopt, but also answers objections to the practicability of such a plan. However, a more simple and more direct style would in no wise detract from the literary flavor or the intellectual nature of this essay. It certainly would ensure the author a larger reading public.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Because the TRUMPET editors feel that no student could be both capable and impartial enough to review a student magazine such as Castle Tales, they drafted Miss Erna Moehl, of the English department here.

Essays Well Done.
The idea of having three essays treat three different facets of one man's personality is appealing. What is more, all three contributions are well done. Here, incidentally, Stumme seems to achieve more singularity and directness of style than he did in his editorial. All three essays gained timeliness by relating the past to the present.

Remarkable about "Paving Unlimited" is that the author takes just one little contribution from the vast bulk of Franklin's serices to mankind and traces its effects. In "Benjamin Franklin and the Deistic Religion" the reader may note something also present in Miss Chapman's poem "To Mr. Overstreet"—namely, a straightforward, unsentimental reference to the divinity of Christ. That type of thought is part of what is meant by the statement that the magazine reflects some of the solid principles for which Wartburg stands.

Chapman's Work Excellent.
Referring to Marion Chapman, one may say that her work here, as in previous issues, is outstanding. In poetry her versatility is notable as well as the way she has of making words to bring out the moods she wishes to evoke. Her story, "The Thing," rings true from start to finish and comes home with force to any one who has gone through a similar experience.

Personally, it would be more pleasing to this reviewer if she had used the word "rector" instead of "priest," just as it would have seemed better if the writer of "Looking In" had used "minister." This may be called narrow-mindedness, but it is rather a desire to see this magazine reflecting the protestant school Wartburg is. To get back to Miss Chapman, may one ask why in the last line of "Poetic Justice" she is using the nominative form "he"?

Heefner's Poetry Welcome.
To those who like poetry that they can understand and who know that ease and simplicity are a high form of art, Helene Heefner's poems are welcome. Particularly good is her "Christmas Is Music" with its appeal to the ear. Grelling's "Tell Me" strikes one as powerful because of the images it calls forth and because of the clear, succinct question it asks.

Bob Gremmel's detective story, "Hot Trumpet," is well done. Style and diction are in keeping with the subject; suspense is nicely built up and the end comes neatly and naturally. "Hill Without Fire" is not quite consistent in tone. It starts out like a serious psychological study, only to end like a comedy. "Suicide Note" I like. It is light and smooth with a good last verse.

Choice Of Words Appealing.
By skillful use of contrast and by good choice of words appealing to sound, smell and touch, as well as by some onomatopoeia, Howard Rand drives home his impressions in "Doomed."

"The Moon and the Stars," Ray Schwartz employs allegory effectively, repetition giving the essay artistic unity. His meaning, however, is not immediately clear.

'Fable' Beautiful, Cryptic.
"Fable of the Narcissus," like much modern poetry, is beautiful in places but cryptic. Second, third or fourth readings makes one think he understands it, but never with the certainty of having grasped what the author meant to express.

It is refreshing to have Dr. Neumann let his hair down by writing some Ogden Nash imitations. The remark of the clown in "Twelfth Night" seems in place here: "Behreem me the Knight's in admirable fooling!"

Quarterly, Milwaukee Lutheran Document Association

Born the son of the illustrious Henry Melchior Muhlenberg, founder of the Lutheran Church in America, Peter was destined to overshadow his father's fame. A great supporter of American independence, he did everything possible to widen the breach between the colonies and the king. With hostilities about to break out, he summoned his congregation for his last sermon. Reaching the climax of his speech, he shouted—"There is a time for all things. A time to preach and a time to fight. And now is the time to fight!" With those now immortal words, he cast aside his clerical robes revealing his uniform as an officer in the Revolutionary Army. Peter went on to win glory as a Major General. He was elected to the first, third and sixth Congresses and twice served in the Senate. His statue stands in the famous Statuary Hall at the nation's capital.

Financial freedom, too, is a goal we strive for throughout our lives. The easiest way to obtain this security for our unproductive years is through insurance.
